

1800's Clinton County

First Settlers

Life was hard for the first settlers. After purchasing their land, they had little money left over to buy anything else. Even if they did, they would have to travel several days to buy supplies in Pontiac or Detroit. After the first crops of wheat or corn were harvested, your father would need to take the long trip to Dexter to have it ground into flour. Some of the flour would be brought back to use for making bread.

At first you would have lived in a small log cabin. Children would sleep in the loft with straw for beds.

Clearing land and doing chores would take up most of your day. Until a well was dug, you would have to haul water from the nearest river or lake.

Your bathroom would have been an outhouse. An outhouse was like a porta potty. Since going to the outhouse wasn't easy if it was cold, rainy, or dark, you would use a bedpan when you didn't want to go outside. There were no showers or bathtubs. To take a bath you would sit or stand in a washtub and pour warm water over yourself while washing.

After a sawmill was built near you, your family could have boards cut and build a wood frame house and barn with the help of your neighbors. The old log cabin would then be used as a shed or barn or schoolhouse.

Once there were enough neighbors, a school would be started and teacher hired. The first schools were usually in old log cabins. If the teacher didn't live close by, she or he would take turns living with families in the area. Older children would only go to school during the winter when there wasn't as much farm work. Most children only went to school for grades 1st-6th. All six grades were in the same room with the same teacher. Because most children only went to school during the winter, they might be 17 or 18 before they finished 6th grade.

Younger children would write on slate boards. Older children would use quill pens and ink to write on paper.

Railroads come to Clinton County

Beginning in the 1850's four railroad lines built tracks that crossed Clinton County. Next to these tracks towns were started. The railroad towns were: Bath, Eagle, Elsie, Fowler, Ovid, Shepardsville, and St. Johns.

Farm families could now travel to the nearest town to buy and sell goods. They could also ride on trains to get to distant places much faster.

Farm Life

If you lived on a farm in the 1800's you would have a lot of chores. Children would help their mothers make meals, get water, churn butter, wash dishes and clothes, clean the house, and take care of younger brothers and sisters. They would help their fathers feed and care for the animals, milk cows, gather eggs, remove weeds and stones from fields, chop and split firewood, and plant and harvest crops.

There were lots of special jobs that needed to be done at different times of the year. In the spring fields needed to be plowed with horses or oxen and crops planted. Maple trees were tapped and the sap boiled to make maple syrup and maple sugar.

During the summer hay had to be harvested and stored for the winter. Fields needed to be weeded. Wild berries and fruit were picked.

In the fall crops were harvested. Root crops were stored in a cool cellar. Grains were taken to a gristmill to be ground into flour. Hickory nuts and walnuts were gathered and stored. Livestock were butchered and candles and soap made.

When winter came timber was cut, hauled over the snow, and chopped into firewood. Once the settlers were able to build an ice house to keep food cold all year long, ice would need to be harvested and hauled to the ice house.

Children had very few toys. When they had free time, they would play games like blind-man's bluff, hide and seek, and find the thimble.

Until the 1960's most farm children went to one-room schools. While the first ones were only for grades 1-6, by the end of the 1800's most were Kindergarten through 8th grade.

Town Life

As more people came to Clinton County, towns were started and grew. If you were living in a town your family were not farmers. Your parents would own or work at a business and you might need to help them.

Towns would have general stores, grocery stores, blacksmiths, and churches. Larger towns would have halls for town meetings, music shows, plays, and dances.

You would still have chores, but not as many. In towns there were more kids your age to play with. Your house would have a stable in the back for a horse and buggy. Just like the farm kids, you would also have an outhouse.

Other than a small garden, your family would need to buy everything they needed from stores in town.

Your school would be bigger than the one-room schools. The town schools would have more than one teacher with fewer grades in each classroom. By the end of the 1800's most of the larger towns also had 2 or more high school grades.

Clinton County Courthouse

In 1871 Clinton County moved into a new courthouse in St. Johns. It was erected on courthouse square at the end of Clinton Street. It had a large front lawn.

THE STORY OF A WHISTLE.

I.

1. On the day that Benjamin Franklin was seven years old, his mother and brothers gave him a few pennies.

“What shall I do with these coppers, mother?” he said. “Shall I keep them in my pocket?”

2. “You may spend them for something that you like,” said his mother.

“And may I have more when these are gone?” he asked.

3. His mother shook her head. “No, I cannot give you any more. So you must take care how you spend these.”

4. The little boy ran out into the street. The yellow pennies jingled in his pocket as he ran, and made pleasant music for him.

5. Should he buy candy or toys? He liked them both. He had not tasted candy for a long time; and he could not remember that he had ever played with a toy of his own.

6. He thought that the pennies in his pocket kept saying, "Candy or toys! candy or toys!" And he could not make up his mind which he wanted most.

7. As he was running along, he met a boy blowing a whistle. "That is just what I want," he said; and he hurried across the street to the place where whistles were sold.

8. "Have you any good whistles?" he asked. He felt as if he were almost a man.

"Yes, plenty of them," said the shopkeeper. "Will you buy a whistle to-day?"

9. "I'll give you all the money I have for one of them!" said Benjamin. He did not think to ask the price.

"How much money have you?" asked the man. "Let me see."

10. Benjamin showed him the pennies. The man counted them, and then said, "It's all right, my little fellow." He put the bright coppers into his money drawer, and gave one of the whistles to the little boy. "Here is a whistle that will please you," he said.

"Just hear me blow it!"

II.

11. Benjamin Franklin was very happy. He ran home as fast as he could, blowing his whistle as he went.

"What have you there, my child?" asked his mother.

12. "A whistle! a whistle!" he cried. "Just hear me blow it."

"How much did you pay for it?"

"All the money I had!"

13. His brother, who was sitting in the door, laughed. "Well! well! Did you give all your pennies for that whistle?"

"Yes," said little Benjamin, and he spoke very slowly, "I gave the man every one of them."

14. "You ought to have asked the price," said his mother, kindly. "You have paid four times what it is worth."

15. "Yes," said his brother. "That is a dear whistle, I think. You had enough money to buy a whistle and some candy too."

16. The little boy began to cry. But his mother took him upon her lap and said, "Never mind, my dear. We must all live and learn; and I think that, after this, my little boy will take care not to pay too much for his whistles."

III.

17. As long as Benjamin Franklin lived, he did not forget the lesson which he learned that day. He said, "If I am idle and spend my time for nothing, what is that but paying too much for a whistle?"

18. And so he was careful to make good use of every hour. He was always busy; he was always trying to learn something that would be useful to himself and to others.

19. He could not go to school as boys do now, but he read all the good books that he could get. And in time he became one of the greatest and wisest men that ever lived in our country.

20. When you are a little older, you will read more about him, and about the many things which he did to make people happier and better. It is now more than a hundred years since he lived, but the name of Benjamin Franklin will never be forgotten.

SUBTRACTION.

8. 1. JAMES, having 5 cents, gave 2 cents for a pencil; how many cents had he left?

ANALYSIS. Since James had 5 cents, and gave 2 cents for a pencil, he had left the difference between 5 cents and 2 cents. The difference between 5 cents and 2 cents, is 3 cents. Therefore, he had 3 cents left.

2. Mary had 3 peaches, and ate 1 of them; how many had she left?

3. Ella had 6 pinks, and gave her sister 2; how many had she left?
