

tinuously since you were little, it's time to say good-bye. It seems just like yesterday you were walking into your kindergarten teacher's class. Who can forget the kid crying at the front door? Or what about your eagerness to go out and play with all of your friends at recess.

It wasn't a bit stressful back then. You were simply there to have fun.

In a blink of an eye time has passed and we are left with many important decisions. From the time we were little we all dreamed about being a doctor, fireman, nurse, somebody who would help the world. Now it's time to take the blindfold off and step into the real world. It's time we start budgeting our much more. The many years that have passed were filled with many memorable moments that will keep you smiling for a lifetime. Nobody will forget about their best friend and when they first met. The day-to-day struggle of staying awake in class.

We've reached the dead end of the road but have managed to succeed and begin a new venture where there is no limit.
