

This Is It

Question: Who has the most apathy?
Answer: The class of 1984!

This year's graduating class is known for their acute senioritis (which began in the ninth grade), and wild parties (which also began in the ninth grade), along with a large number of athletes and scholars. And it was an unusual year for us. Once again, the question was raised of whether or not to have a senior tea. The answer: Yes! The senior play put on this year was called "Loco-Motion, Commotion, Dr. Gorilla, and Me," and it was as crazy as it sounds. The senior party and senior skip day rounded out the major activities of the year.

Long before our graduation announcements even arrived, we were religiously counting the days left in the year. Senior countdowns began showing up in lockers and on chalkboards. We modeled our new caps and gowns for our parents, hung our tassels on our rear-view mirrors, and went to graduation practice.

Finally, on June 3, 1984, the big day arrived: Graduation day. This is it!

Kimberly Alexander

Mary Applebee

Ernest Bannister

Christopher Bashore

Betty Batora

David Bearup

David Bensinger

Kimberly Bernath