

Finding The Best

in Education

When young people think about which college they want to attend, they often judge colleges by which one is the most popular. As they grow older, they realize that there are many more factors involved in choosing a college. When researching which college they want to attend, they have to decide whether they want to live at home or on campus. Also, they have to decide if they are going to attend a two year college or a four year university. Then there's the question that athletes must ask: does the college have the sport's program that they want? And the most important question to ask is whether or not they can afford the college they want to attend. Seniors at Ovid-Elsie have researched the information dealing with college, and when they were asked which college/university they want to attend and what decisions led up to their choice in colleges, they responded by saying:

"I would like to attend Central Michigan University because it has one of the best programs for the field I want to go into, which is sport's medicine."

Sherry Parker: "I want to go to Michigan State University because I want to be a nurse. I believe MSU has one of the best nursing programs in the area. Also, MSU has an excellent veterinarian program which is another interest in my life."

Jessica Cole: "I would like to attend Central Michigan University because it has one of the best programs for the field I want to go into, which is sport's medicine. And I want the best possible education I can get."

David Dickenson: "I haven't decided on which school I want to attend. Right now, I am debating between The Colorado School of Mines and Western Michigan University because I am still not sure which school has the best combination program of football and engineering."

Each individual student has to choose the college that is right for them. And through the years, they have realized that the college they attend is not based on which one is the most popular, but which suits their needs the best.

□ Tamara Dickenson

► MISSING MUGS: (Front Row) Colin Overmyer, Anthony Zuniga, Dominic Willett, (Back Row) Joe Carmody, Derek Wilson

