

The Terrors of ...

Blind Dates.

The car broke down in the middle of nowhere, and we had to walk for four and a half miles to get to the next gas station.

While we were walking he tried to cuddle with me, and all I kept thinking was when I get ahold of Julie, I'm going to kill her. Julie, my best friend, decided I needed to start dating new people; therefore, I was introduced to blind dates.

Blind dates can have many different events that make them into nightmares. "The worst blind date I ever had was during my sophomore year. I went with Jason Pierce and Everett Reneaud to a dance in St. Johns, and I got stuck with much less than my dream girl. She was an ugly, obnoxious leech," stated Chris Putnam.

On the other hand, Chad Zalecki's terror with blind dates dealt with unexpected surprises. "I had gone to one of the local hang outs with a bunch of my friends to meet this one girl. We were having a great time until her boyfriend showed up. It surprised me because she never even told me she had a boyfriend.

Needless to say, when he walked in, our date ended."

Then there's too many people on a blind date. Jennifer Skirba said, "My worst blind date was when my best friend set me up with her boyfriend's friend. I was supposed to babysit my brother that night, so he came along. Then he started crying because he was afraid of my date."

Kathy Haley summed up her feelings on blind dates when she said, "You're better off going out with someone you know rather than taking the chance on the terror you might meet."
