

Senior Kathy McCausey visited Point Park College in Pittsburgh. Kathy is warming up to audition for the BFA dance major program. "I was accepted and I also received a dance scholarship for the potential they saw in me," said McCausey. "I'm still undecided," she added.

Photo by Linda McCausey

College Visits

I N F O R M

For many High School Seniors, college visitations make their decisions a bit easier.

"I received information on walking distances from one end to the other and on classes," said Senior Missy Cadwell who visited Central Michigan University.

Class size is an important issue for many students.

"The smaller the classes, the more attention you get,"

said Senior Valerie Smith who visited Baker College of Owosso.

"I visited Grand Valley State University for scholarship information," said Senior Jason Roberts.

Each college has it's advantages, and disadvantages.

"One advantage of Grand Valley is that it is far enough away from home, but close to home at the same time," said Senior Amy Rehmann.

"A disadvantage that I found of Central Michigan University is that there aren't any serious shopping centers around!" added Cadwell.

College visitations usually leave an impression on seniors.

"I was impressed by the combination of work, academics, and service. I also loved the huge 1000 acre mountain campus," said Melissa Pline who visited Warren Wilson in North Carolina.

In addition, college visitations help Seniors get a feel for the atmosphere of a campus and to check out the quality of housing arrangements that a college has to offer. Michelle Holzh...

Kevin Pettigrew
Melissa Pline
Aaron Pouch
Mark Puetz

Barnaby Pung
Melissa Pung
Heidi Ramsay
Emily Randolph

